Showers and Thunderstorms Expected Next Few Days; Be Alert for Additional Advisories

The National Weather Service (NWS) Guam Weather Forecast Office advised mostly cloudy skies and scattered showers are expected over the Marianas.

A period of monsoon southwest winds is expected the next few days, keeping a wet pattern in place for the next 2 or 3 days, with scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms today, increasing to occasional showers tonight and Monday as winds increase to between 15 and 20 mph. Showers are expected to decrease to scattered Monday and Tuesday night, and by Tuesday night only isolated showers are expected.

The Offices of Guam Homeland Security and Civil Defense (GHS/OCD) remind the community to be alert for possible additional advisories and practice caution while traveling in rainy conditions, driving below the speed limit and allowing enough braking distance between vehicles.
